1. (Currently Amended) A messaging method comprising:
answering a call from a calling party in a Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP) format at a premises of a called party;
saving at least a portion of a message as an electronic audio file, wherein the message is received from the calling party via the call;
identifying an email address associated with the calling party by comparing caller identification (ID) information received to a contact list, wherein the caller ID information is received with the call;
preparing an outgoing email message in response to recognizing that the message has been received, wherein the outgoing email message includes the email address associated with the calling party;
attaching the electronic audio file to the outgoing email message, wherein the outgoing email message includes a visual message that is not a textual message;
addressing the outgoing email message to a network node associated with a unified messaging mailbox of the called party; and initiating sending of the outgoing email message and the attached electronic audio file from the premises to the network node.

Summary of Arguments:

Claim 1:

1. The cited references do not disclose at least one element of claim 1. The Office states, at page 4 of the Office Action, that Friedman discloses answering a call from a calling party in a Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP) format at a premises of a called party. However, Applicants can find no mention of a VoIP format in Friedman.
2. The cited references do not disclose attaching the electronic audio file to the outgoing email message, wherein the outgoing email message includes a visual message that is not a textual message. The Office states, at page 12 of the Office Action that a text string (email address) is a visual message.

Claim 6:

The cited references do not disclose an SMS message format.

Claim 10:

The cited references do not disclose a uuencoded text format.
